What are the effects of new technologies
on our freedom?

Nowadays, there is a fast development of technology. Some people consider that the Internet, mobile phone and other inventions is very helpful because you can find information you need. But have you ever thought how do new technologies influence on our freedom?

To begin with, a lot of people have their own pages on social networks, where they may post information about their life, their photos or just helpful advices. However, not all information is appropriate. In every country there are special rules, which control what people post in the Internet. Due to this fact, you can't write some sort of information and feel freedom in everything.

Moreover, there are millions of users of social networks, who can use your personal information to use your credit cards or find you in real life. Mostly, famous people have obsessed fans, who can follow them both on networking sites and in real life. That's why you should control the amount ~~the~~ of information about yourself in order to prevent some dangerous situations.

Eventually, development of new technology has made our life easier because you can chat with your friend using your smartphone.
Therefore, new technologies taught us to control the sort and amount of information we post.
